Dear Unwin

I send you the selected drawing with the names of the appropriate stories written on the back. You can if you choose make a further selection and arrange all about reproduction. All the illustrations are in now and the selection is the fittest I can make. I have not been up to the mark quite since I came back and we are just looking forward to five weeks of prefect [sic] misery in fitting up and flitting into a large new house which we have taken, last Monday, some way from here, so my work will be a little delayed on that account. Still I shall get on as I may. Your young men will not forget to send me the third editions of the Raiders and my copies of the sixth Stickit when that comes

With kindest regards

Ever truly yours
