

Morleys Hotel

October 12th 1896

Dear Unwin

Thanks for your letter. I have just arrived in town having been in Scotland for a fortnight where your letters followed me. I shall call upon you one morning before long, but I shall be extremely busy writing at a new story until the 30th. After that I shall see as much of you as necessary. I cannot look up Whistler until that date. He takes too much time.

Glad The Grey Man does so admirably. The picture of course is not finished and won't be till November. The American accounts are very good considering that the Moss hags is not a love story.

Morley's hotel remains my address but I have had to take a quiet room in order to get on with my writing - too many callers here. Thanks for various cheques received through Watt, they are nice plasters for sore places.

Send Macpherson a copy on my account, he writes in 'the National Observer.'

yours faithfully

SR Crockett
